GEN. RICHARD'S ACCOUNT OF OPERATIONS ON THE SAN JUAN RIVER.

From the Aspinwall Courier, Feb. 24.

PUNTA ARENAS, Thursday, Feb. 19, 1857.

On Feb. 4 the steamer Texas arrived with 200 men, under TITUS, who proceeded up the river, and joined Col. ANDERSON's force of 200 men. The 5th was spent in cleaning arms. On the 6th we advanced with the steamer Scott, and took it, (took what?) losing two men killed. According to the enemy's account they lost seven killed, with a large number of wounded. The same day we fell back on our former position, because it was useless to attempt anything on the opposite side of the river without artillery.

The next morning we ran up to a point 300 yards below Serapiqui, and landed all the force and artillery, except one company, which we left at Fort ANDERSON. Then we erected barricades, and built houses for the men, provisions and artillery. Next day we began cutting a road and bridging the creeks up to Cody's Point.

On Wednesday evening we started up this road to convoy our artillery on Cody's Point, which work was completed on Thursday night. The force then posted was under the command of Col. TITUS—the artillery being under Gen. RUN WEBAY; the left resting on the artillery—the right ranging up the river; both being protected by the shrubbery along the banks of the river.

On Friday morning, at the break of day, Gen. WEBAY opened his fire on the fort occupied by the Costa Rican forces. At the same time Col. FRANK ANDERSON crossed the river with 130 men, and took position on the point called Alvarado. They arrived there at noon, and without being perceived by the enemy.

Meanwhile the action had been going on warmly between Gen. WEBAY's artillery and Col. TITUS' command on one side and the Costa Ricans in the Serapiqui Fort. One of their pieces was dismounted, and another, their heaviest, was not fired during the day—Capt. BARRILLER's company of riflemen keeping up such a destructive fire that they did not dare to approach and load it. Col. ANDERSON's men had been posted, and now opened a vigorous fire on the right flank of the enemy, driving them from their barricades in the main building up the San Juan River.

From that time until dark a constant and a severe fire was kept up from Cody and Alvarado points, which was responded to by scattering shots from the Costa Ricans, and we saw the enemy running away into the woods, leaving their blankets, and throwing their guns away.

The commander of the fort at Serapiqui—Col. BLANCO—was among the first that left at 2½ P. M.

During the day Col. ANDERSON's force lost two killed and one wounded—the latter being now able to do duty. Col. TITUS' command had two wounded, and the artillery none.

The next morning Capt. DE BERRANZE and a volunteer called "Hancock" went over in a canoe, pulled down the Costa Rican flag and hoisted the lone star of Nicaragua, all the enemy having abandoned the point in the night. Upwards of 400 stand of English Minie muskets were left scattered on the ground.

Col. F. ANDERSON's command crossed in the steamer and took possession, finding thirteen dead bodies in the principal fort, probably all killed by the artillery of General WEBAY. Fifty men of this command were detached for burying the dead of the enemy, which amounted to thirty-three. Five pieces of artillery, four brass six-pound pieces, and one iron nine-pound piece, with corresponding ammunition, were found. Also, 50,000 rounds of Minie rifle cartridges in good condition, and a large quantity of damaged ammunition; 250 pairs pantaloons, 40 bushels beans, and six barrels salt, but enough kettles and pans for 2,000 men.

The same night the steamer Rescue took up the forces of Col. TITUS, and fourteen-pound gun to the Island San Carlos (should read "Island of Providence," side our correspondence.—ED. TIMES.) which was taken without resistance. The boat returned to Serapiqui and took up all the stores needed at the above post and then proceeded up the river in pursuit of the steamer Charles Morgan, which had gone on with the news of the Costa Ricans having left Serapiqui.

The Morgan had four hours' start and the Rescue came in sight of her just as she went over Castillo Rapids.

The Costa Ricans had tar and rosin on the steamers Scott and the Cyclone and on all the buildings of the town. At the moment they saw the Rescue they set fire to the boats and buildings, and at the same time opened a heavy fire of round shot and grape from the fort on the hill. The lower fort on the river was taken by storm by Capt. WEAR's company of Col. TITUS' command. Four men jumped from the Rescue, swam against a six mile current, (?) cut loose and saved the steamer J. N. Scott, although the machinery was much injured. All the furniture and bedding of the national Hotel was saved. All other houses with their contents were destroyed.

In taking this fort the enemy lost 45, while we had only one killed. The Costa Ricans were still 50 strong on the high fort of Castillo, cut off from water and provisions, and surrounded by our forces.

On the 18th the fort was to have been taken by storm. By this time that is done and communication has been established with WALKER.

STATEMENT OF THE PURSER OF THE STEAMER TENNY.

From the Aspinwall Courier, Feb. 24.

GREYTOWN, Friday, Feb. 20, 1857.

The royal mail steamship Trent arrived at Greytown on the 11th inst., and found there the British men-of-war Cossack, Tartar, Victor, Pioneer and Scorpion. The Orion had gone to Point Gay in consequence of the unsafe harbor outside, her draft of water being too great to permit her coming into the harbor. The crews are said to be all healthy.

After the capture of the river boats the other day, Mr. SCOTT, the agent, with surprising speed and energy, prepared a boat (called the Rescue) and dispatched her up the river, but from her not having returned, reasonable fears were entertained of her having fallen into the hands of the Costa Ricans. These fears were dispelled by her making her appearance.

On Sunday (15th) news reached Greytown that WALKER's men had retaken Serapiqui. From inquiries I have made of those here, it would appear that on the 18th WALKER's party attacked that place at 5 A. M. with a force of 200 men and two nine-pounders, the Costa Ricans holding on till about the same time the following day, when they evacuated the fort, and WALKER's people took possession, after sustaining a loss of 2 men killed and 3 wounded. From a statement of a prisoner in Hospital it appears the Costa Ricans had a loss of 11 killed and 20 wounded.

The Rescue, above referred to, confirmed the Serapiqui accounts, and brought further news of the fall of Castillo into the hands of WALKER's party on Monday, with a loss of 8 killed and 20 wounded. It is stated the Costa Ricans lost not fewer than 33 killed and 60 wounded. Some of the accounts say many more.

WALKER's men, also, repossessed themselves of the steamer J. N. Scott, but her machinery had been so much injured that they were unable to bring her down until repairs are effected.

The Rescue had on board Colonel LOCKRIDGE, who came down for provisions, of which there are plenty at present in Greytown.

The British naval authorities here are preventing recruits from being forcibly compelled to join WALKER, who claim their protection. Some very disgraceful scenes are, at times, enacted on board those river boats. It was only the other day a man's cries of murder awakened the attention of the Commander of the Victor, who discovered that he had been threatened with his life, and a pistol held at his head, for protesting against going up to fight. Of course, the interference had the effect of rescuing the man, and about fifteen others who fell out of the ranks upon their being mustered at the desire of the naval authorities. A report was silent that two Englishmen had been hanged on board the last river boat that went up, in consequence of which Captain COOKSON, of the Cossack, at present senior naval officer, detained Colonel LOCKRIDGE and the Rescue, on her arrival yesterday, until he fully investigated the case, and, after rescuing three men claiming British protection, he allowed them to proceed.—I suppose being satisfied of the falsity of the report.

GUANO ON THE ISLAND—THE SLAVE-TRADE—GRAND REVIEW—THE NEWS FROM NICARAGUA, ETC.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

HAVANA, Sunday, March 8, 1857.

Our speculators are all agog at the unexpected information that the keys on the south side of the Island contain immense deposits of rich guano. The discovery was made by Capt. GARNER, of the brig Henry W. Motivar, about two years ago. He states that he has made a careful survey of three of the principal keys, and found the guano to be, on an average, from three to four feet deep. Of course it contains but a small proportion of ammonia, but I understand that its market value has been raised in the Baltimore market at $60 the ton. Capt. GARNER has had several interviews with the Captain-General, and has succeeded in getting a war steamer to be placed at his service for the purpose of making a complete survey of all the keys on the coast of Cuba. Several of the most prominent officers of this Government accompany Capt. GARNER. The party sailed from here last week, and propose examining the south side of the Island first. Specimens of the guano are on exhibition at present, and I understand that two companies have been formed for the purpose of digging the guano for the American market. The slave-trade seems to have received a fresh impulse lately, and large numbers of Spanish and American vessels have left this port for Africa. Several cargoes have been landed within the last few days. Accusations of bribery are rather strong against parties of high standing, both natives and foreigners.

General CONCHA is now holding a grand three-days' review of all his troops. They are encamped near Puentes Grandes, and thousands of the Habaneros visit the camp daily to witness the evolutions. I hear no more about the invasion of Mexico. The new treaty with the United States has probably convinced CONCHA that it were better to leave CONSTITUTION alone.

Our latest advices from there represent everything as quiet, the Government having succeeded in overpowering the Revolutionists. The new Constitution will go into operation next September, CONSTITUTION in the meantime holding the reins of Government. WALKER's star is again in the ascendant, Col. TITUS having succeeded in opening his communications by the San Juan. All the steamers have either been captured or burnt, and the Costa Ricans have been forced to retire to their own country.

RECEPTION OF COMMISSIONER MORSE—THORABLE RESULTS OF HIS MISSION—MEETING OF CONGRESS, ETC.

The Aspinwall Courier, of Feb. 27, says:

"On the 27th and 28th of January, Mr. MORSE was presented to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, and the Acting President of this Republic, but no definite understanding had transpired from these interviews.

Congress met on the 1st of February. The President's Message and the reports of the Secretaries had been received and published. The Message takes the position heretofore assumed, respecting the 15th of April affair, by the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, though the tone of the Message is moderate—and the Secretary is more violent, more prolix, and more unconciliatory than ever.

The opinion at Carthagena, and in some other parts of the interior, among the foreigners, seems to be that the mission of Mr. MORSE will not have a peaceful result. We cannot see any cause of apprehension; Mr. MORSE was well received, and the unfavorable messages to which we have referred emanated from the outgoing Administration;—the incoming one is now organized, and with it he has to negotiate."

THE REVOLUTION—NAVAL ENGAGEMENT—FAILURE OF THE COSTA RICAN LOAN.

The Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer New-Granada arrived at Panama Feb. 21.

The New-Granada brought to Panama 23 passengers and $240,758.

From Peru we learn that CASTILLO has taken Paita and Pura, and that a naval action was had in the harbor of Callao between the Government and revolutionary parties on the 29th of January, in which but little damage resulted to the vessels of either party, but some dozen persons were wounded.

We are also informed that the mission of the Minister to Lima, from Costa Rica, who went to negotiate a loan, has been unsuccessful, and considerable bad feeling has been engendered by the conduct of the Minister and the treatment of him by the Peruvian Government.

The Panama Star and Herald says:

"We have received such information, by the steamer from Callao, as justifies us in stating, with tolerable certainty, that arrangements are at present being made for transporting the Peruvian guano across the Isthmus of Panama. Such an arrangement would be highly beneficial to the Isthmus."

EXPLORATION OF THE RIO NEGRO—NEW MAIL STEAMER—OPERATIONS OF THE MINT.

From the Mercurio of Valparaiso, Jan. 31.

Through the representations of a young gentleman, Mr. WILLIAM COX, Government has decreed the organization of a party to explore the river Rio Negro, in the South, by which, according to traditional rumors, a water communication may be found uniting the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. With this object, an expense of $3,410 has been decreed; but that, convinced of its insufficiency for the object proposed, Government intends increasing the sum, in order to insure the success of the expedition in all respects.

We were agreeably surprised on the 19th inst. by the arrival of the steamer Valparaiso, of the South Pacific British Mail, which comes to take her place on this line; she made the voyage in 60 days, touching at Rio Janeiro, and by her we had news from Brazil in 30 days.

A fire took place in Santiago which devoured four dwellings; it broke out in a manufactory of inflammable materials, and on this account efforts are being made in the capital to remove all such establishments to the suburbs, and to form companies of firemen on the same plan as those of Valparaiso.

The Mint has not been able to coin silver on account of the high price obtained by this metal; still it seems that the scarcity of the coin has obliged the house to buy dear and sell cheap, in order to momentarily supply the market.

BOLIVIA.

Our last advices state that Republic to have remained in peace after the revolutionary attempt which was discovered and overcome in time. Nothing of importance has taken place during the last fortnight.

LAURA KEENE'S THEATRE.

A new play by Mr. PALGRAVE SIMPSON, called "The Black-Book," was produced here Thursday night. The plot is of a German, mystified character. A young lady has been deprived of her hereditary estates, owing to a doubt which hangs on the legal marriage of her mother. A good-looking and quaintly-dressed gentleman appears in a flash of lightning,—it would be impossible for him to appear in any other way. He knows everything about everybody, and at once obtains the reputation of being the Demon of the Hartz Mountains. By his machinations the young lady obtains her rights. He then revenges himself on the damsel by marrying her.

Mr. SIMPSON's piece owes much to the manner in which it is produced. Good scenery and good dresses are great conciliators. Mr. JORDAN, as the hero, was a pleasant sort of demon. Mr. BURNETT, as a gluttonous baron, hard as hickory. Mr. JOHNSTON, as a strange, idiot stone mason, excellent and artistic. Mr. KEEN, as Peter, (comic character,) loud but somewhat too funny. Mesdames KATE REYNOLDS and MARRIAN were respectable. The piece obtained considerable applause.

☞ The premium of $200, announced in 1856, for the best tract on "The Family Relation as affected by Slavery," has been awarded by the Committee to Dr. CHARLES K. WHIPPLE of Boston.

WITHDRAWAL OF PUBLIC LANDS.—In accordance with the provisions of the act approved March 3, 1857, granting lands to various railroads in the Territory of Minnesota, the Commissioner of the General Land Office has withdrawn from sale and location, until further notice, all the lands now in market west, together with a strip, about thirty miles broad, east of the Mississippi River, with the exception of several townships north of the half-breed Sioux Indian tract.

The Sandwich Islands Reciprocity Treaty—Probable Postponement of the Adjournment, &c.

The Pennsylvania and Indiana Senatorial Cases.

Appointments and Confirmations—Changes to be Made.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, March 13.

An attempt was made in the secret session of the Senate to-day, to revive and ratify the Reciprocity Treaty with the Sandwich Islands. The contest became very fierce, and the friends of the Treaty finally carried two test votes by two-thirds votes, but the Senate adjourned without a decisive vote, as the minority is evidently determined to fight against time.

The Senate will probably rescind the resolution for adjournment at 1 o'clock to-morrow, as the President has signified a necessity for presenting some further nominations. If the adjournment is postponed, it is now believed that the Treaty will be carried.

Mr. CLAYTON, who succeeds PETER G. WASHINGTON in the Treasury Department, is an officer of great experience and generally esteemed. The change is most satisfactory to all parties.

I learn that J. ANDRSON THOMAS is not reappointed Assistant Secretary of State, but is only requested to remain at present. JOHNSON, the former editor of the Free Press, a personal friend of Gen. CASS, a gentleman of special fitness for the place, is likely to get it.

Comptroller WETTLEMEY has resigned by request. Gov. MEDILL, of Ohio, will probably be his successor.

Gen. DENVER, of California, is a formidable candidate for Commissioner of Indian Affairs, or some other bureau. He is very popular, and has a high character for industry and sterling integrity.

B. F. WASHINGTON is a leading candidate for the San Francisco Collectorship. Besides his acknowledged fitness for the place, he is backed by the entire delegation except BRODERICK, and has strong party claims. His success appears probable.

Postmaster-General BROWN issued an order to-day abolishing the system of agents to accompany the California Mails.

Mayor WOOD's advent here creates a stir in the New-York hive. Some members of the opposing factions complain that he has seriously disconcerted their plans. S.

About forty persons from Kansas, including ten Indians of that Territory, headed by General WHITFIELD, this morning formally paid their respects to the President.

The Senate will adjourn sine die to-morrow, the President having no communications to make which would render it necessary to prolong the session beyond that time.

GEORGE P. TURNER, of Virginia, was confirmed as Second-Lieutenant in the Marine Corps, and ALLEN RANNEY a Lieutenant of the Marine Corps, vice YOUNGBLOOD, resigned.

In the Senate to-day, it was agreed on all sides that the informalities presented in the protest offered do not affect the right of Mr. CAMERON to his seat, and it was held that the question of alleged fraud and corruption in the election properly belonged to the Legislature of Pennsylvania, and not to the Senate. The resolution declaring Mr. CAMERON entitled to a seat as legally-chosen Senator, was withdrawn by Mr FOOTE, who offered it, the Committee on the Judiciary having been discharged from the further consideration of the subject. Here the matter rests.

Mr. BUCHAN and Mr. PUGH received a letter this afternoon, dated yesterday, from twenty-four members of the Pennsylvania Legislature who had signed the protest denying Mr. CAMERON's assertions, and saying that they could have obtained the signatures of the other Democratic members to the letter, but for their absence in consequence of the adjournment of the Legislature.

Capt. SMOOT, of the Navy, died to-day.

Comptroller WETTLEMEY has resigned; also Lieut. COWDEN, of the Navy.

Hon. D. T. DISNEY, of Ohio, is lying dangerously ill at Dexter's Hotel. There is little hope of his recovery.

The Judiciary Committee and Mr. Cameron's Case—Forney under a Cloud—The Late Corruption Investigation.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, March 11, 1857.

CORRUPTION AGAIN.

As I entered the Senate to-day, the first words which fell upon my ears were "bribery and corruption," uttered in stentorian tones by Mr. FOOT, of Ohio. I turned instinctively to see whether the Sergeant-at-Arms was not at my back, thinking at the another subpœna to appear at the bar of the Inquisition, of which I cherish no very pleasing recollections. Seeing nothing of "the enemy," and recovering my equilibrium, I found that the Senator was talking of the alleged improper CASE OF MR. SIMON CAMERON.

influences exerted in Pennsylvania to secure the election of Hon. SIMON CAMERON. The futility of the pretexts by which it was sought to oust the successful competitor of JAMES W. FORNEY was fully established by the clear and comprehensive report of the Judiciary Committee. The point was well taken, that the Senate had no power, upon any pretext, to go into an investigation of corruption in a State Legislature. The latter body has itself full power over the subject, and is able to purge itself of unworthy members, and to punish bribery among them if it exists. Mr. BUCHAN well said, "Let them purge themselves of corruption, and not come here and ask us to give them the plaudit?"

FORNEY UNDER A CLOUD.

Col. FORNEY is now in the city, but so utterly broken, apparently, in spirit as to excite the commiseration even of his enemies. His influence, too, seems to have received a sad blow, from which it does not recover. This results, in a great measure, doubtless, from the fact that the Colonel seems to have very little recuperative moral energy. The defeat of his Senatorial hopes appears to have so crushed him that he has not spirit enough to rise above the disaster, and renew the battle in which he has hitherto spent his life. This evident despondency naturally involves him in an under-rating of his own powers, and of course if he estimate nothing in the world and strife of politics, and assumes nothing, he is but a mummy or a fossil.

PRESPICACITY OF AN INQUISITOR.

I have been thinking, to-day, of the remarkable position assumed by Mr. KELSEY, of New-York, in his speech before the House, in relation to the late Corruption Committee, of which he was the nominal Chairman. It will be remembered that while the rest of the Committee concurred in recommending the expulsion of four members of the House, Mr. KELSEY disputed the right of the Committee to make any recommendation whatever, or to do anything but simply report the facts. And yet Mr. KELSEY gravely gave the House to understand that while he was just as much shocked by the developments of the investigation as his colleagues could be, the only difference between them and himself was as to the character of the reports which they should make! Evidently that difference seemed to him the merest shadow of a hair—so trivial and unimportant as not to be worthy of consideration, and by no means detracting from his title to a full share of the glory achieved by the Committee.

MR. KELSEY'S INTENSIVE LOGIC.

But Mr. KELSEY gives us another evidence of his remarkable perceptive powers. The Committee, of which he was Chairman, was raised upon his own resolution directing inquiry into the conduct of members of the House, and of nobody else. While under that resolution Mr. KELSEY could find no authority for reporting any recommendation whatever in the case of members of the House, he could and did find ample authority to recommend the expulsion of your correspondent who had excited the Committee's ire by defending himself against their attempts to force him into service as a human jackal! He could report no recommendation in regard to members of the House, inquiry in regard to whose conduct was expressly ordered; but found no difficulty in reporting a recommendation in the case of an outside party in relation to whom they had no power, either express or implied, to even inquire! What wonderful sagacity and incomparable logic! If the four-year old lads of Mr. KEMPER's district should organize a debating club to discuss the question of the ubiquity of Doesticks' friend Dumpling, he certainly should be honored by election as its president and umpire.

CORRECTION.

Let me correct an unfortunate error which occurred in my letter on the Corruption Committee, published this morning. In the paragraph referring to the original Minnesota Land bill, the sentence, "It may be that improper influences were brought to bear in that connection, but nobody will believe it who," &c., should have been "It may be that no improper influences," &c. Embarrassments of the New Administration—The Appointments—The Dallas-Clarendon Treaty, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, March 12, 1857.

The pressure for office exceeds all former experience, not excepting the rush in 1849, when popular sentiment demanded change, throughout all the departments of Government. Since Monday, the Cabinet have met daily at 9 o'clock, rarely adjourning before 3, and beyond the urgent public affairs, this time has been engrossed almost entirely in matters concerning the dispensation of patronage. California and Pennsylvania have the largest numerical force of applicants on the ground. The country politicians of the latter State swarm like locusts, and every man of them has pretensions to the first rank of consideration. Poor Mr. BUCHANAN is pestered and badgered to death—they give him no respite; being a bachelor, even his bedroom is no sanctuary in the White House. Morning, noon and night they watch him, seize him and torture him. This treatment is manifestly impairing his natural amiability and gentleness. At times he is crusty and complaining; these mental perplexities have superinduced a return of the epidemic which occupied him severely a month ago, and his expression of face shows anxiety and suffering.

If one idea predominates over another just now in the President's mind, it is rotation in office. But the rotatory motion does not seem to work smoothly. It is opposed, in the first place, by nearly all the old States of the South. The new ones have more liberal views, and consent readily to change. Democratic incumbents and their friends oppose the policy, because it is calculated to create privileged classes in the party, and to draw invidious distinctions. They illustrate this theory in this wise: The heads of Departments have notified the subordinates here that there will be no removals except for cause. These subordinates number fully twelve hundred. Now it is contended, there is no better reason for vacating the commissions which expire at the end of four years, or applying to them a different rule of policy from that which has been adopted for Washington. And besides, it is believed, that the Democracy in the States, except in particular cases, would just as soon have the present incumbents retained in the principal offices, if their displacement is not to be followed by a distribution of the minor places among the masses. The principle now set up recognizes a system of leadership, and partially ignores the rank and file. Hence, it is neither acceptable nor convenient. In time, Mr. BUCHANAN will be compelled to abandon this idea, just as he did the original design of making up the Administration, which does not contain but two men of the original cast, and which excludes the President's cherished purpose of introducing an Old-Line Whig. The reappointments in Tennessee, to which so much significance is attributed, is a practical contradiction of the announced policy, more simply designed as a mark of civility to the retired Administration; as the nominations had been sent to the Senate before the exodus of Gen. PIERCE. Several of the old incumbents have been reappointed at New-Orleans, and the South Carolina delegation have recommended the retention of those whose commissions are about expiring at Charleston. The Post-Offices at Philadelphia, New-York and Boston, will run out by their own limitation in a few weeks, when the Administration will probably show its hand clearly.

The Union does not yet give much token of increased vitality under the new régime. Mr. AITKINSON being disabled with the complaint which prostrated the President, has been in no condition to exhibit his powers, which are considered to be of a superior order to those of his predecessors. As that paper will look to the printing of one branch of Congress, it may be interesting to know that Mr. FORNEY received some $40,000 as his share of the Senate contract, exclusive of an obligation of $14,000 to the Union concern. The out of providing amusement more [illegible] derived.

Without a world of "fashion," without a world of pe[illegible] those who [illegible] the social law, and to put in practice what they learn of theory, our New-York [illegible] would rather be in a Gulliver like that of Communipaw, without the consolation which soothed the life of our ancestors in that placid village, or is it most utterly maddening into the most degraded and deplorable dissipation without rule, or system, or order, or reason.

Clearly, I should say that the great social difficulty of New-York is the want of an organized world of "fashion." Our society wants leaders. What is called the "best society" of the City is neither an excessively extravagant, nor an outrageously corrupt society. It is not our "best society" which flaunts with Mrs. Potiphar at the watering places; it is not our "best society" which raises itself in the shops, and glitters with diamonds at noonday on Broadway. Our technically "fashionable" society is by no means remarkable either for ostentation, or for immorality. Few, very few of these bewildering edifices which are supposed to have converted the Fifth-avenue into a "street of palaces," belong to members of that society; and the careful stranger who shall look over the list of managers at any ball of admitted "fashion," will find that of the names recorded there but few are wholly unconnected with what is most active, most honorable and most humane in the life of our metropolis. The society which brings New-York into disrepute with the country members, is the society which flirts at the St. Nicholas and at Saratoga for a season, then to vanish utterly into space—it is the society supported mainly by the marvelous system of gambling, which, under the name of "speculation" has been introduced into modern commerce. It is in no sense of the term a "fashionable" society, for it fashions itself upon others, and in its turn fashions nothing.

The moral corruption of this class of our society is at once deplorable, and most difficult of cure, because most difficult of approach. It has its origin in the looseness and relaxation of all ties among the families which make up this circle, in the abdication by the fathers and the brothers of those families of all their domestic responsibilities and duties in behalf of the one occupation of money-getting.

Moralists quarrel with the wives and the daughters of these men, for loving to dwell in boarding-houses and hotels. But how should they help loving to dwell in boarding-houses and hotels, or anywhere else on earth, rather than in solitary houses which are not and cannot be homes, because there is no home in the hearts of those who should inspire them with the life of home?

If a man devotes his whole time to Wall-street, or the exchange of the Astor-House, and leaves his wife to grow away from him in frivolous associations of her own, into which his very successes have driven her, by freeing her from the necessity of providing for her household, and so depriving her of the one sure resource of occupation conferred on her by her education; and leaves his daughters to be educated hap-hazard by every possible influence but a home influence; and leaves his sons to drive and drink their youth away before their beards are grown, what can we expect of him and of his—what of a world made up of such as him and his?

Runaway matches, in which half-educated girls clutch insanely at a shadow of romantic happiness, to seize a substance of prosaic misery; indiscriminate dancings and flirtings; clandestine correspondence, carried on with anonymous admirers—such are some of the natural consequences of the assumption of the responsibilities of married life, and of the paternal relation by men who mean to regard their wives mainly as the ministers of their own comfort, and to look upon their families chiefly as certificates of their own "respectability." I remember to have seen once, in England, a book bearing the title, Can Women Regenerate Society? Considering the brevity of life and the multitude of books, I did not peruse the volume, but I should really like to know how the author answered his own question. Here it is constantly answered in the affirmative from the pulpit, and through the press, and we are overwhelmed with denunciations of female extravagance, and homilies upon the unlovelliness, naughtiness and unpatriotic wastefulness of those who delight in crinoline and moire antique. 'Tis the women who are at the bottom of all the mischief—silly Eve is forever tempting sensible Adam to his ruin; and Wall-street is wearied out of its wits by the Avenue. I own I have been much moved by all these misogynic moralities. If Adam's sense is not equal to his own salvation, and to the salvation of silly Eve in the bargain, I can't say that I have much compassion to throw away on him. If Wall-street has not manly nobleness of character enough, decision, dignity, gentleness and faith enough to inspire the Avenue with the sentiments which bind true women to true men, and make both men and women truer, I can look on without a tear while the fair fingers of the Avenue remorselessly deplete the plethoric pocket-books of Wall-street. Man claims to be the "lord of creation" in Gotham, as he did in Paradise; but if he behaves himself no more lordly in the modern city than he did in the ancient garden, I don't see what right he has to quarrel with the ridiculousness and the wretchedness he brings upon his own head.

We Republicans all admit, and even insist, that you can't make a man noble by calling him a noble, and it would be well for us to understand that it is equally impossible to make a man a husband or a father in the true and supreme sense of these great relations, by bestowing upon him the names of the external attributes of husband and of father.

The future of the Republic we are told is in the keeping of the mothers of the people. So let it be! But in whose keeping shall the mothers be? "Who shall guard the guards?"

American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Science sets northward this year. The American Association, accepting the invitation of its Canadian brethren, has made its preparations to sit down in Montreal, on Wednesday, Aug. 12, to talk coolly of the year's researches with whomsoever chooses to listen. We have [illegible] the reception of the body. [illegible] will be spared that will render the [illegible] a warm one. A Conveyance Committee is making arrangements for procuring free passages across the ocean. Favorable answers have been received from three or four Steamship Companies. Mr. Cunard offers two passages; the Havre Company, three; the Glasgow Company, two; and the Ocean Steam Navigation Company the same. It is expected that the number of free passages, out and back, will reach thirty. Two hundred and fifty invitations to foreign savans have been forwarded; accompanied by [illegible] municipal [illegible] travellers in the recognition of the Association. The Association has power to elect a President for this meeting, in place of Prof. HALLEY, whose death we have already noticed. The Convention will sit at least a week.

☞ A rival to Coroner COURTNEY has made an exhibition of himself in Chicago. At an inquest held upon the body of one CHARLES SHUPERT, (killed in an election riot,) the Coroner refused to permit the publication of testimony. The City Attorney sustained him, asserting that the proceedings of a Coroner's Jury were like those of a Grand Jury, not to be made public; and the reporters were excluded. The Coroner, according to the report of the Times, accompanied the expulsion by angry comments, and paid no heed to remonstrances addressed to him by the Jury. The matter furnishes material to the Chicago press for lively discussion.

STATE POLITICS.

Doings of the Legislature—Important Action of the Senate.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

ALBANY, Wednesday, March 11.

Both Houses of the Legislature are becoming very much impressed with the necessity for hard work. The Senate, in obedience to this necessity, has resolved, after Monday next, to meet at 10 o'clock, and the House has adopted a rule which limits each speaker to five minutes. This will suppress an avalanche of words, words, words, signifying—gas.

The little bill to permit Shylocks to lend their money at 7 per cent, is to be made the special order in the Senate to-morrow at 12 o'clock. If it survive an hour's debate, it has more vitality than I think it possessed, and certainly much more than it merits.

Chemung Locks appear to be the topic in the Senate, as it has been any time these three years, as my experience goes. The enlargement project has a large number of friends, who seem to be very earnest and sincere in their advocacy of the measure. Though some of these are a little given to brag, I am inclined to think their representations deserve more attention and favor than they have hitherto received. If, as is claimed, the enlargement of these locks will open to the reach of the people of this State the products of the inexhaustible coal fields of Pennsylvania, it certainly becomes the duty of the State to embrace the advantages to be derived from the project.

The attention of the House to-day was mainly given to the consideration of the license law, reported by the Select Committee. It was principally discussed by those who seemed most impressed with a determined hostility to any law which threatens to restrict the traffic in blue ruin. The friends of temperance are themselves very much divided between the proposition to adhere to "prohibition" on the one side, and the desire to secure something that, while it shall be within the scope of the decision of the Court of Appeals, shall yet be more effectual for the suppression of intemperance than the license laws hitherto in force.

A. OAKEY HALL, Esq., District-Attorney of New-York, is here, urging the passage of a bill to regulate and limit challenges to jurors for bias and prejudice. It was carefully drawn by Judge FOOTE, and will have a beneficial tendency to destroy legal bias, founded on hearsay or newspaper reading. It is more than probable that the trials of ECKEL and Mrs. CUNNINGHAM will be delayed until the fate of the bill is determined.

The bill to amend the Charter of the City of New-York, and the bill to establish a Metropolitan Police District, are booked for an early consideration to-morrow. They have been printed, and are lying around loose in every direction. When they were reported by the Committee I had the weakness to indorse them as being about as near perfection as the works of mere mortals could well be. I know the labor which the Committee bestowed upon them. I had some impression of the host of people who had let the Committee have large pieces of their minds, while the bills were undergoing incubation. Then, again, Messrs. VANDERBILT, VAN VALKENBURGH, VARNUM, and POMEROY, and VARNUM and HOLLIS have the reputation among us of being men of good judgment and discretion, and possessed of some intelligence. Taking all these premises, and having read the bills, and compared with existing laws, and several which it was thought by their putative parents should exist, I was led into the error of believing that in all essential points, the charter and police were about the thing.

That was a mistake. One, to be sure, which a layman like myself from the rurals might naturally then have made, yet such a one as seems almost inexcusable, now that I have blazing upon the subjects the light of intellect made brilliant by the oil of experience.

I have now no hesitation in pronouncing the two documents which the Assembly have agreed to-morrow to give especial consideration, to be the most imperfect that it was possible to produce. They are defective in every leading feature, and nowhere that they should be in details. I have had my eyes opened to their enormities by those who know the subject like a book, and have drank in with mine own ears assurances of their having been "weighed in the balance and found wanting," from living lips. Here is ENLING, (you have heard of, if you have never seen, ENLING,) who is shocked at the idea of withdrawing his dark lantern from the muddy depths of the Street Department. Here are TAYLOR, and MORTON, and BURGESS, and the men of the Assessment Bureau, and they all join in the refrain to ENLING's solo. They are not only loud but earnest in their protestations against these schemes, which they have no hesitation in asserting will, if carried through, strip from them all the power and patronage which they now possess, and place it in the hands of others, who will have no experience in "pickings and stealings," and no taste for plunder.

If I had a sensation left, I should feel called upon to express the shock which this development of the "real purpose and intent" of the Committee has given me. But as I have not recovered from the surprise of this announcement, I must content myself with a recital of the facts, and leave the public to work up whatever indignation may be felt at this attempt of Messrs. VAN VALKENBURGH, VARNUM, POMEROY and HOLLIS to define the limits of public plunder.

The underground railroad carried off two passengers from this city to-day. I believe the line runs straight through to the Suspension Bridge. The passengers seemed strong, robust, and well able to endure the fatigue of "fleeing from the wrath to come." Their fare was paid through, and enough of material aid furnished to provide refreshments on their journey, by several outsiders, watching in the rotunda the revolving of the wheels of legislation. I noticed two or three State officials, a District-Attorney of some considerable note, and several distinguished members of "the lobble," interested themselves in the fate of two who had labored and waited so long for freedom. "TAMMY says they have no rights which a white man is bound to respect, let us give them our sympathy," and the sympathy came in solid substance sufficient forthwith to put the "two Bills" on their final passage.

ALBANY, Thursday, March 12, 1857.

The bill to amend the charter of the City of New-York was the special order to-day in the House, at 11 o'clock. The friends of the measure did not take any active part in the discussion of the amendments proposed, and the opponents made a rambling, scattering, ineffectual attempt to stem the strong current which was impelling the bill forward. They wasted most of the time in offering frivolous and ridiculous amendments, which they could not reasonably expect to have adopted, and which fell of their own weight.

After it became evident that the minority had no really valuable or even plausible suggestions to make, and after about two hours had been wasted in listening to incoherent harangues, a motion was made to report progress to the House, and ask leave to sit again.

The House received complacently the announcement that the Committee had made "some progress," but peremptorily refused to grant the Committee permission to have another pow-wow over the bill—but referred it back to the Committee on Cities and Villages, with instructions to report the same complete for a third reading.

The bill to create a Metropolitan Police Department was also a special order, but as the minority report and bill were not on the files, the consideration of the subject was postponed until to-morrow.

The bill to reorganize the Letting Board of the Canal Department was also taken up in the House to-day, and ordered to a third reading. This is generally known as Senator UTHAT's bill, as it was introduced and passed the Senate under the auspices of that gentleman. It is estimated that this measure will produce a saving to the State of at least $500,000 a year.

The Senate, to-day, ordered to a third reading the bill providing for the Genesee Valley Canal, from its present terminus at Olean to Mill Grove Pond, a distance of about six miles—at a cost not to exceed the estimate of the engineers.

Senator WADSWORTH, in a bill introduced this morning, shadowed forth a project, which if carried, will almost revolutionize the trade of the lakes. He proposes to incorporate a Company to construct a ship canal connecting Lake Erie with Lake Michigan at the most eligible point. This completed would lessen the distance between Buffalo and Chicago about 800 miles.

Senator PETTIT, in accordance with a previous notice, introduced a bill to authorize the construction of a railroad in Broadway. It provides for a confirmation of the grant made by the Common Council to JACOB SHARP.

Senator BROOKS was detained from his seat, to-day, by indisposition.

The arrival of Hon. BLOOMFIELD USHER, Senator elect from St. Lawrence and Franklin Counties, is daily expected.

To-day the Canal Board were to meet, to hear the report of the Sub-Committee appointed to prepare an answer to the resolution of inquiry passed by the Senate, in relation to the policy of levying discriminating tolls. Up to 2 o'clock no meeting had been held, and probably it will be some time before any thing is done. I understand that the Sub-Committee is anything but a unit, and that no less than three reports may be expected.

The Canal Board, or rather a majority of them, have, I learn, arrived at the conclusion that they may levy discriminating tolls without awaiting the action of the Legislature. I cannot believe that a power of that kind was ever intrusted to the Board—but I have no doubt, if such a power exists, it will be exercised by the political majority of that body. They are governed by such an intense hatred of some prominent individuals whose interests would be affected—or rather whose business would be ruined—by such a policy, that they will even stretch a point, if necessary, to secure their ruin.

Judge MULLRY, of the Eighth Judicial District, having resigned his seat on the bench of the Supreme Court, I learn that the Governor has filled the vacancy by the appointment of Hon. MARTIN GROVER, of Allegany County. Mr. GROVER will make an intelligent, upright and industrious Judge.

It is more than probable that Judge WATSON, of the Third District, will follow the example of Judge MULLRY, and leave a position for which his unfortunate habits have totally unfitted him.

There was a pleasant social time in the State library last evening—"a feast of reason and a flow of" chit-chat, enjoyed by the members and the ladies of the capital. The presence of Ex-President FILLMORE was a remarkable feature in the entertainment. A select circle of his intense admirers seemed delighted to have an opportunity to float in his shadow, and to be the recipients of those sage, epigrammatic remarks for which he has so long been famous. I heard him myself say that "libraries were valuable institutions," and should probably have been gratified with many similar droppings had not my attention been unwarrantably directed by a glimpse of a smiling face in another part of the room. Before I could capture that and recover my position some curious individual had assumed my place, and was monopolizing the Orphic sayings, and I had to look to the bright eyes for consolation.

NEW-YORK CITY.

Death of the President of the Corn-Exchange Association.

JOHN L. BUCKLEY, Esq., for nearly forty-years a leading flour and grain merchant, and for the past two years President of the Corn Exchange Association, of this City, died at 7 A. M. yesterday, after a brief illness. Early in life, he succeeded his father in a then prosperous business, and for a long time past he has been generally recognized as standing at the head of his class. As a man, and as a merchant, he was deservedly one of the most popular. His personal character was such, that but few acquainted with it were not fascinated by it. In private life, his generous, frank and winning disposition endeared him to a large circle of friends, who most sincerely mourn the great loss occasioned by his death. To his well-informed mind, industrious, persevering, and prudent habits, and ever-courteous demeanor, his remarkable success as a merchant, was attributable. Of late years his rapidly-increasing business relations became the source of much care and anxiety. His constitution,—originally vigorous—succumbed to the destructive influence of burdens too weighty, and exertion too incessant, for any individual to sustain. At the age of sixty he died, without an enemy, and with hosts of devoted friends to remember him.

The news of Mr. BUCKLEY's death was communicated to the members of the Corn Exchange Association during their session of yesterday, by Captain FRENCH, who, after suggesting the propriety of some immediate recognition of the claims of Mr. BUCKLEY on the friendship and regard of his associates, successfully moved that THEODORE BANKS, Esq., take the Chair, and ALFRED BARRATT, Esq., act as Secretary on the occasion. It was moved by N. H. WOLFE, Esq., and duly seconded, that WALTER S. GRIFFITH, Esq., be requested to prepare a series of resolutions, expressive of the sentiments of esteem and sorrow cherished for their deceased associate by the members of the Corn Exchange. In response to this motion, which was unanimously carried, Mr. GRIFFITH reported, and the meeting adopted the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove very suddenly from our midst, by the hand of death, our late President, JOHN L. BUCKLEY, Esq.,

Resolved, That the members of the New-York Corn Exchange realize in this solemn and painful dispensation, that we have sustained a personal affliction by the loss of one who, as a friend, a neighbor, and a merchant of forty years unblemished standing, has commended himself to the warmest esteem and respect of all his business associates.

Resolved, That the dignity and urbanity with which the deceased has presided over the interests of the New-York Corn Exchange, and the industry, ability, and zeal which he ever has manifested in promoting its highest usefulness, will long be remembered by his associates, and affords an instructive example to all who may succeed him in the important post.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with the afflicted family and friends in this their sad bereavement, and that we will testify our respect by attending his funeral obsequies as a body.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in all the daily papers, and that a certified copy thereof be sent to the family of the deceased.

THEODORE BANKS, President.

ALFRED BARRATT, } Secretaries.
WALTER S. GRIFFITH, }

The reading of the resolutions was followed by a few appropriate remarks from Mr. GRIFFITH, on the business standing and personal character of Mr. BUCKLEY. It was then moved by FRANCIS P. SAGE, Esq., duly seconded and unanimously adopted, that, as a further evidence of respect for the memory of the deceased, the Corn Exchange be immediately closed for the day. The assemblage soon after dispersed.

College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The commencement exercises of this institution took place Thursday evening in College Hall, corner of Fourth-avenue and Twenty-third-street. The lecture room was crowded. A large portion of the audience were ladies. A prayer was made by Rev. Dr. ALEXANDER.

After the Dean had read the names of the graduates, Dr. EDWARD DELAFIELD, Vice-President of the College, conferred the diplomas.

When this ceremony had been completed, Dr. DELAFIELD delivered a brief address to the graduating class.

The exercises were concluded with a benediction by Rev. Dr. ALEXANDER.

Thirty-seven young gentlemen graduated. Their names and residences are as follows:

Discharge of Mr. de Pennevet.

Some time since a notice appeared in our columns announcing the arrest of a Frenchman, Mr. Louis DE PENNEVET, a commission merchant in Philadelphia, upon a charge of forgery, and as a fugitive of justice from New-York. He was brought to this City and held to bail to answer the charge. After a full investigation of the charge, Mr. DE PENNEVET has been honorably discharged, and a nolle prosequi entered by the District-Attorney, the evidence being insufficient to support the charges. We are informed that an action has been commenced by Mr. DE PENNEVET against PHILIP SPEYER & Co., the bankers, for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, in which the damages are laid at $25,000.

All Settled.

The charge preferred against Mr. MITCHELL, of the Bull's Head Hotel, in Third-avenue, of an assault upon officers RELAY and CONNER, of the Twenty-first Ward, while they were in the discharge of their duty as policemen, was yesterday dismissed by Recorder SMITH, after a full hearing of the case.

Now that those Oneidas Indians are at liberty and Mr. MITCHELL has been honorably discharged from arrest, we suppose the great Indian difficulty at Bull's Head has ended.

☞ The Brick Church property sold for $430,250, an advance of $147,700 upon the sum paid for it by Messrs. WHELEN & Co. We have no doubt but the property would have brought $100,000 more than it did, had it not been for the systematic attempts to impeach its title. From the day of its sale by the City, one or two Ex-Aldermen have devoted their idle time and venom to bringing [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SUIT DECIDED AGAINST A SAVINGS BANK.—HARRIET WALLACE, a frugal factory-girl, who had nearly a hundred dollars deposited in the Lowell Savings Bank, has but just been permitted to draw her money, after a long and painful course of litigation. She commenced her deposits with $41, in 1848, and being about to leave the city temporarily, she employed a friend to take the money to the institution, and sign, with her name the by-laws, other deposits followed, but when the young lady came to get her money out, in 1856, the Treasurer refused to deliver it up, without proof that the first depositor (the friend) was not the real owner of the money. That young woman being dead, and Miss WALLACE being unable to give a bond of indemnity, the matter went to law, first in the Common Pleas and then in the Supreme Courts, and the claim was sustained by both. The Bank now pays the deposit, with interest, and the cost of prosecution.

SUICIDE OF A VIRGINIA CLERGYMAN.—The Woodstock (Va.) Tenth Legion records the suicide in the Staunton Asylum, of Rev. JOHN HOWARD, the esteemed Pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Woodstock. He had shown symptoms of mental alienation, and imagined he had been "commissioned to warn men that the judgment was near at hand;" and so intent was he upon the accomplishment of what he believed to be the command of his Master, that he could scarcely be induced to take either rest or refreshment, but went from house to house delivering his solemn message, quoting several passages of scripture pertinent to his theme. Upon these symptoms becoming manifest, he was taken to the Asylum by his friends, where he hung himself the first night with his handkerchief.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

By way of Havana we have details of the Cuban Adventure, a telegraphic abstract of which has already appeared. The late operations on the Rio Vuelta River by Colonels LOCKRIDGE, Anderson and Titus, were attended with important results. From the very confused report drawn up by Gen. HENRY, of the Nicaraguan Army, we learn that the fort at Serapiqui and the lower fort at Vuelta, had been taken from the Costa Ricans. The operations leading on the island of San Carlos, had not been so successful, the loss of the enemy being a long distance higher up. He still occupies the island of Providence. A large quantity of arms and ammunition had, according to his account, fallen into the hands of the victors, who were full of hope that communication would soon be opened with Gen. WALKER. In their retreat the Costa Ricans had burnt the steamers, with the exception of one, the J. N. Scott, which was rescued from destruction by a party of LOCKRIDGE's men, after having suffered from the flames so much that it could not be used.

Further particulars of the terrible accident on the Great Western Railroad, near Hamilton, Canada West, have reached us. The bridge over the Twenty Mile Creek, where the occurrence took place, is a swinging one, elevated about sixty feet above the water. It is supposed that the bridge had been weak so much that the locomotive was observed by the attendants to sink to a degree that the passenger cars were raised up by the pressure and dragged into the canal. The number of passengers is estimated at from 75 to 100, of whom only 15 were taken alive from the wreck, and of these five subsequently died. The water in the Canal is 12 feet deep, and most of those who were not immediately killed were drowned. A partial list of the victims will be found under our telegraphic head.

In the United States Senate, (Extra Session,) yesterday, the resolution of the Judiciary Committee, discharging it from the further consideration of the protest against the right of Mr CAMERON to a seat as Senator from Pennsylvania, was adopted after some further debate. A resolution was then reported from the same Committee authorizing testimony to be taken by Messrs. PITCH and BRIGHT, and then contesting their right to seats from Indiana. A resolution was offered as a substitute, providing for a disposal of the case during the present Session, and the matter was debated at considerable length, but without any conclusion.

In the State Senate yesterday, the bill enabling the Staten Island Railroad Company to establish a ferry, was ordered to a third reading. The Committee on the affairs of Trinity Church made a unanimous report, accompanied by a bill, and the Senate ordered two thousand extra copies to be printed. The bill provides for amendments of the law of 1814, with a view to restore certain rights and privileges guaranteed by ancient charters, and by the law of 1784, which was abrogated by that of 1814; and also requires the corporation to make an annual report to the corporators. In the Assembly, a report of the chemical analysis of the State was received from the Secretary of State. The convictions during the year were 11,824, of which 8,518 were of foreign birth, and 2,806 of American. The increase over last year is 4,580, which is attributed to more full returns from the sheriffs, and not to an increase of crime. The Port-Warden bill was ordered to a third reading. Notice was given of intention to introduce a bill to compel persons using intoxicating drinks to obtain a license. The bill divesting the Canal Board of certain powers, and transferring the same to the Contracting Board, was passed.

The Committee of the Canal Board, appointed to consider the propriety of discrimination in tolls on property from the West, met last night, and a report was submitted. The report recommends discrimination on property coming by way of Oswego, and going West by the same route; and also recommends the collection of tolls from the Central Railroad, which would yield four or five hundred thousand dollars a year. Commissioner VANDERPOEL alone dissented from the report.

The Quarantine question was again considered by the New-Jersey Legislature yesterday. The House refused to pass a resolution to inform the New-York Commissioners that the Legislature would not consent to have Quarantine located at Sandy Hook; and it is thought that the proposition to appoint a Commission to confer with that of New-York will prevail on Tuesday, to which time the consideration of the matter was adjourned.

The State Survey of the Okefenokee Swamp, in Georgia, is resulting in important developments. It seems that the most erroneous opinions have been entertained of this hitherto undeveloped region, which covers nearly one-fourth of the area of the State. It does not appear to be a swamp after all; and the expedition, so far from being impeded by water, have suffered severely for a want of it, being compelled to sink three wells on the route. The undergrowth is of the thickest and most colossal character, delaying the expedition so much in cutting through it as to render starvation imminent upon a failure of supplies. The portion actually surveyed can be drained without difficulty, thus reclaiming thousands of acres of valuable cotton land.

Another case of poisoning is supposed to have occurred in Massachusetts—this time a wife by a husband. Mrs. LAVINIA BARNES died in Stoneham on the 27th ult., and circumstances which have since transpired have led to the exhuming of the body, and an analysis of the contents of her stomach, when it was found that she had been poisoned by arsenic. Her husband, HORACE BARNES, and a young woman, named ADALINE DRAKE, a boarder in the house, have been arrested on suspicion.

We understand that the Harlem Railroad Company have just concluded a contract with the American Telegraph Company, for the construction this Spring of a very substantial Telegraph line upon their road between this City and Albany. This is an improvement much needed upon other roads, as well as upon the Harlem.

An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner FERRY upon the body of JAMES MARTIN, the young man who was shot dead, on Thursday night, in the boarding-house No. 100 James-street, by BOGARDUS SLIGHT, the proprietor of the place. The verdict exonerating the Jury was "Death by injuries by a pistol-shot fired by BOGARDUS SLIGHT." The prisoner made an examination, "I shot the man [illegible]

Alderman CLANCY is acting Mayor in place of Mayor WOOD at Washington. Before Mayor WOOD left town, he locked up those checks which were to have drawn from the City Chamberlain the pay for work done by the dirt-carters under Mr. ELLIOT—so that Alderman CLANCY is not responsible for their not being returned. But, Mr. Mayor CLANCY, can nothing be done to cleanse the City during the lucid interval?

If the City School bill now before the Legislature—which has not been printed yet, nor scarcely seen in this latitude—passes, we shall have a Board of Education until 1869, of 264 members—12 from each Ward. When the present incumbents have all gone out of office it will consist of 8 from each Ward—176 in all. It is to have an Executive Committee of 22—one appointed by the local Board of each Ward. For the meetings of this grand Board of 264, we propose that the Crystal Palace be rented for the Winter and a grove in the Central Park for the Summer. It would be a magnificent body to look on! and what a handy working number!

The Committee of the Common Council that so long sat upon the Manhattan Gas Company's sins, has reported favorably, giving the Company a "character." They advise the creation of an Inspector of meters.

In the Board of Councilmen last evening, the filthy condition of the streets was incidentally noticed upon the presentation of a resolution of inquiry into the silence of the Street Commissioner. Councilman MCCARDLE called attention to the misery inflicted upon the laboring men by the failure of the proper authorities to pay them.

DRAN, the lucky coachman, who conquered, on a fair field, the handsome daughter of a wealthy citizen who employed him, and so carried terror to the hearts of all prudent parents of marriageable daughters, and knocked coachmen' wages down fifty per cent. in a day, and made only one-eyed and ugly drivers eligible to the vacant seats,—the fortunate Mr. DRAN has consented to go West, and into business, his father-in-law furnishing the capital. He leaves his wife behind him, promising to avoid her utterly for six months, only that by post they may confer as freely as they choose.

How to relieve Broadway was discussed in Special Committee yesterday, of both Boards of the Common Council. The proposition to make every tenth omnibus in each line, that now travels the whole length of Broadway, stop and turn back at the Museum, was talked over by the Councilmen's Committee and informally pronounced impracticable.

JOHN L. BUCKLEY, Esq., President of the Corn Exchange Association, of this City, died early in the forenoon of yesterday. Mr. BUCKLEY has been conspicuously identified with the flour and grain trade of the port for nearly forty years. At the time of his death he was sixty years of age. The members of the Corn Exchange Association received intelligence of his death during their session of yesterday, passed a series of resolutions expressive of their sentiments respecting the deceased, and then adjourned for the day.

The three-thousand-ton steamer for CHARLES MORGAN & SON's Pacific line is completed and will be launched as soon as the engine is ready; though the business at the ship-yards is not driving, a review of that department in another column shows quite an active state of affairs among the ship-builders.

The slaver Jane P. Glover was sold yesterday, at auction, at the Navy Yard, for $1,750. She was appraised, after her condemnation, at $6,000. Mr. C. A. FIGANIERA, of the firm of FIGANIERA, REIS & Co., was the purchaser. The vessel will be employed in the West India trade.

The Chinaman, CHEEHONG, was discharged yesterday—greatly to the delight of his gipsy wife and a crowd of his countrymen. The case of the captain and first and second mates of the Encoriera, charged by CHEEHONG with abusing himself and his wife, is postponed to Monday next.

The Parsons estate case came up for final argument before the Surrogate yesterday. DUDLEY FIELD, Esq., appeared for the legatees, and HIRAM KETCHUM, Esq., for the executors. The estate is valued at some $150,000, and the interests of four heirs are involved in it.

The tongue of the big fire-bell on the City Hall kept wagging at short intervals nearly all day yesterday. There were a number of small fires occuring in various parts of the City, but no great ones.

The trial of JOSEPH JACKSON for rape was continued yesterday, in Brooklyn, before Judge STRONG and a Jury. The defence examined twelve witnesses, most of whom saw the complaining witness just after the alleged outrage, and thought that she showed no signs of grief or shame. The case will probably be brought to a close to-day.

The Dallas Treaty.

The London Times, in an article which we yesterday transferred to our columns, expressed what we have every reason to believe is the prevailing sentiment of the English public in regard to those difficulties with this country which the Dallas-Clarendon treaty was intended to adjust.

The Times says distinctly that England, having done what in her lay to effect an honorable and equitable settlement of the points at issue, can "afford to wait in order to see what are the precise objections of the American Senate, and what new demands Mr. DALLAS will have to make after declaring himself satisfied with the settlement which was made four months ago."

These "precise objections" and "new demands" (which Mr. DALLAS by the way will of course never consent to make) have been embodied in the resolutions just passed in secret session at Washington: and our correspondent at the capital gives us to-day some intimation of their nature. It would seem that the ostensible basis of these resolutions has been mainly furnished by the stipulation in favor of the Mosquito Indians, it being contended by the opponents of the treaty, that these stipulations involve a recognition of the British Protectorate over the Mosquito Territory. If this be so, there can be little doubt that England will readily accede to such modifications of the Treaty as shall effectually remove this obstacle; for, as we have more than once had occasion to say, the English Government through the whole course of these negotiations has manifested a steady disposition to waive secondary and subordinate claims while insisting upon the recognition of paramount and primary rights. The interest of England in the Central-American question is strictly colonial and commercial, and binds her to the maintenance of the great principle of free transit over the Isthmus. This principle nobody appears disposed to assail, and if the opponents of the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty are sincere in their desire to secure an unexceptionable settlement of the question at issue, they will, probably, be met in a very accommo-

[illegible] Parliament.

If, therefore, as our correspondent intimates, the objections advanced to the treaty have simply been put forward to screen a general hostility to any Convention which may possibly interfere with the Southern extension of Slavery, the dissolution of the American Union, the establishment of a Southern Confederacy, and other objects dear to the hearts of certain factious Senators, the only consequence of a present delay in the ratification of an enduring treaty with England will be the more complete exposure to the American people and the world of plans which can only flourish so long as they are concealed, and of men whose popularity and whose power for evil will disappear with the revelation of their real character and their cherished purposes.

In any event, we see no occasion for troubling ourselves, prematurely, about the fate of the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty, and we shall reserve any further remarks we may have to make on the subject, till the game now playing at Washington shall be openly declared. We shall not be surprised if the whole affair should have no more magnificent issue than to compel Mr. DALLAS into a resignation, which private considerations of delicacy might have otherwise made it difficult for him to tender, or for the President to accept.

The Chances for Walker.

We have further news from Nicaragua this morning. It goes just far enough to stimulate the hopes of WALKER's friends without changing the opinions of those who consider his condition desperate. Col. LOCKRIDGE is making desperate efforts to reopen his line of reinforcements, and so far as he has gone, has been successful. But his progress is small, and the difficulties of the attempt are but just commencing.

Very little warrant can be found in this news for any decisive or positive opinion as to WALKER's eventual success. If LOCKRIDGE should force his way to the Lake, and then succeed in procuring boats, WALKER may be relieved; and having maintained himself against the superior numbers of the allies through January and February, without aid or the immediate prospect of any, there is no reason why he should not hold out to eventual triumph. The climate is always against him. But that, perhaps, is more than compensated by the character of the enemy he contends with, who are wholly destitute of warlike spirit, and whose rapid escapades from the battlefield are owing to the ill-judged exaggerations of WALKER's ferocity, by which the Central American Governments have sought to excite the hatred of the people.

The stories have acted rather upon their fears than their jealousy and aversion. Cowardice disarms them. Nothing could be more injudicious than to have told this emasculated populace, among whom old traditions live with astonishing tenacity, that the American chief was a flibustier and buccanero. The horrors and atrocities perpetrated upon their fathers by those daring freebooters were so recalled; while to us they recall, how, in the better days of Nicaragua, DAVIS, a buccaneering captain from Jamaica, with only ninety men, penetrated to the capital, ransacked and plundered it, and left with prodigious booty; and how MORGAN, with an army less numerous than WALKER's, captured the fortified and well-defended town of Porto Bello, and afterwards, following very nearly the track of the Panama Railroad, took, sacked and destroyed the old city of Panama, the seat of the South Sea trade, gorged with immense wealth, and fortified and occupied by a powerful army. Such recollections provoke the most contemptuous estimates of Spanish-American valor; and almost assure the final success of WALKER. But then, achieving his work in haste, and departing, the flibustier of other times had not a pestiferous climate added to the less formidable dangers he overcame. WALKER, by remaining, has; and may, therefore, fail.

Arctic Explorations.

Two days ago, just as the remains of poor KANE were lowered to their latest resting-place, word came to us that the British Government is about to dispatch a fresh expedition to the Arctic circle. Two vessels, propellers, are detailed for the service, equipped with all the requirements indicated by previous adventure, and, of course, far better adapted to contend with the peculiar difficulties of the voyage than the most successful who have explored these desolate wastes of perpetual frost. They will have all the advantage of the labors of MCCLURE, COLLINSON and KANE, who, within the past five years, have pushed discovery thereabouts to the verge of complete exhaustion. The former have looked through and demonstrated a northwest passage; the latter has gazed down upon that circumpolar sea, which lies there open and tranquil among everlasting ice, as the Valley of Cashmere, surrounded by the everlasting snows of the Himalayas.

The nominal purpose of the voyage is further research for Capt. FRANKLIN. FRANKLIN, however, may hereafter be safely set down as a geographical fiction, a John Doe of nautical research; a name to lend the color of humanity to inquiries purely scientific or merely curious. It is incredible, judging from the spot where Dr. RAE found unquestionable traces of the lost mariners, that, had they survived, they would not have made their way towards Canada, instead of wandering in an opposite direction, or taking up their permanent abode among the Esquimaux, as the more sanguine persuade themselves. The new expedition will, therefore, in all probability, follow and prolong the tracks of COLLINSON and KANE, and accomplish what those navigators proved to be possible. It is understood that an auxiliary expedition overland is to depart from Canada in the Spring under the charge of Dr. RAE. To that we may confidently look for proofs of the entire destruction of the Franklin Company.

NEGRO CITIZENSHIP.—It will hardly be safe for the slave-owner to bring his chattels into the Free States on the strength of the recent decision. None of the opinions go far enough for that. DRED SCOTT was pronounced a slave, notwithstanding his temporary residence on free soil, because, returning to Missouri, he once more became subject to the slave-code of that commonwealth. The Supreme Court has got to decide that he carried that slave-code with him into an independent State, and was [illegible] hold by such State [illegible] It may be true that the [illegible] residence in an adjoining territory; but we do not understand the Court to have pronounced it supreme, in an adjoining and older State, such as Illinois or Indiana. That will doubtless come by-and-by. We can afford to wait for it, since we shall probably have no longer to wait than for the judgment in the Lemon case upon appeal.

Enter Ghost!

JACOB SHARP, we grieve to say, has scarcely reached the middle age of life. He cannot be much over 40 years old, and being of a hale and hearty constitution, bids fair to survive for 40 or 50 years longer. We appreciate fully the pain such a view of his prospects must occasion to the New-York public; for with every recurring year of his existence—whether it reach to ten years or ten thousand—the project for a Broadway Railroad is sure to make its reappearance in the Legislature. JACOB is, indeed, the most persevering and pertinacious of schemers. His ancestor and namesake's devotion to his sweetheart, cannot compare with his entire and undivided fealty to the child of his hopes and father of his expected fortunes, the Broadway Railroad. Neither seven years, nor fourteen, will test in the least the depth and lasting fervor of his affection. It has already outlasted discouragements and disappointments far greater than those which the Patriarch has been so beprnised for overcoming, and he has not received even a Leah,—or a second choice in any shape,—as a solace for his long-suffering and undismayed endurance.

When it was that JACOB the SHARP began his efforts to secure permission to lay a Railroad track in Broadway, we are not certified by any authentic historical record. Tradition teaches that in the golden days of Haroun El Sturtevant,—when the forty thieves held high wassail, and revelled in the halls of the City Fathers, a charter was obtained for such a road:—and that it was repealed, enjoined, overruled, repudiated, and in various other modes exploded and blown into nothingness by various Courts, and other public bodies having authority and jurisdiction over the same, until no man pretended to discern the faintest breath of life in its body, or was able even to distinguish the features of its several parts. But the much-enduring JACOB,—disconsolate but undismayed, with sad and constant step has been over since going up and down through the Earth, principally visible in the lobbies of Albany and the purlieus of the City Hall, seeking with fond and hopeful diligence to gather its scattered limbs and restore them again to the semblance of their shapely and attractive original. Every year witnesses a new defeat,—but every year also witnesses a revival of hope and of high endeavor. The Wandering Jew is not more constant,—the Ghost in Macbeth is not more regular,—than is JACOB in his apparition. Time was that when the brains were out a bill would die and there an end;—but this Broadway Railroad scheme hath more than the immortality of youth—it enjoys resurrection before its time—it startles members of the Legislature in their dreams—and though it may not scar their eye-balls, it greases their palms, and pushes them from their proper and diurnal stools. It is like the life-tree of the Eastern mythology,—and while its root reaches far down into the darkness, so that no man can tell what is the secret of its immortal strength, its leaves shoot forth afresh with every session, and hang their yearly shadow ominous over the brilliant walks and drives of our magnificent Broadway. When SHARP dies, the Broadway Railroad project may also die; but until that time let no man hope to welcome its disappearance from the stage of active life.

We are driven to these reflections by the intelligence from Albany that Senator PETTY has introduced in the Senate the bill to revive the Charter granted long ago by the Common Council, and empowering Mr. SHARP and his associates to build the road. We hope the project will not be pushed. We trust our Albany law-makers will let it alone for this Winter, and give us at least one year more of Broadway. They have on hand quite enough of City legislation for one session,—more, we fear, than they will be able to perform creditably and usefully. The entire reorganization of our City Government,—the distribution and reconstruction of its multitudinous departments,—the provision of safeguards against robbery and plunder,—the creation of a Metropolitan Police System,—these and the various other projects for City Reform which engage the attention of the Legislature are quite enough for one session, without superadding the construction of a Railroad in Broadway. We hope, therefore, they will let this alone for the present at all events. Nobody but JACOB SHARP & Co. wants a Railroad in Broadway. Neither the people who live on it, nor those who go through it, desire the construction of such a road. The street is not wide enough for it, and its character is not fitted to it. Grant a charter, if you will, for opening parallel streets and laying Railroad tracks in them:—but leave Broadway undisturbed. Give us of the City rest for a season from the constant reappearance of this "goblin damned." The whole community will feel intensely and profoundly relieved, when—either upon the demise of the inexorable JACOB, or before that sad event,—they can comfort themselves with the stage direction, Exit Ghost!

A PIECE OF INFORMATION.—The Editor and Proprietor of the Herald, who, according to his own statement, either writes the money articles of that paper "with his own hand," or "dictates them to an amanuensis, from resources within himself," and bases his deductions upon facts and data furnished "by his own friends in Wall-street," is respectfully informed that the Proprietors of the DAILY TIMES were the purchasers of the large lot at the upper end of the Brick Church property. We observe that the money article in yesterday's Herald makes no mention of this little circumstance, and we therefore take the liberty of communicating what we are sure cannot but be a very gratifying piece of financial intelligence. We are confident the omission to notice it must have been entirely accidental, inasmuch as the amount of intellect expended every day by the Editor and Proprietor of the Herald in his money article, in the invention of business operations of various kinds for the Proprietors of the TIMES, forbids the suspicion of indifference on his part towards their concerns.

Our Kansas-[illegible] New-Jersey is not a very large State by [illegible] but she takes on very great airs by virtue of the company she finds herself in. Her geographical position is a most peculiar one. Sandwiched between New-York and Pennsylvania, and forming the great highway between the commercial metropolis of the country and all the territory lying south, she imposes a capitation tax on all the travel that passes over her domain. Opposite to her shores lie the two great cities of the New-World, whose overflow of wealth and population add greatly to her riches; yet so far from feeling herself under obligations to her great and powerful neighbors, she refuses to treat them with even neighborly civility. Like most small bodies, she is fearful that granting a favor might be construed into a confession of weakness, and is all the time painfully conscious of her dignity. Though she has not the ability to do much good for herself or anybody else, she has the power to do a good deal of mischief, and she seems to exercise it, if it is only to assert her consequence. Unfortunately for the interests of this City, the only convenient spot for a quarantine, excepting that which is now occupied for that purpose, lies within the boundaries of New-Jersey, and she is determined that it shall not be used for the benefit of New-York. Sandy Hook lies detached from the main land, and it is the safest and most convenient spot within thirty miles of New-York for Quarantine purposes. No possible danger to the adjoining country could result from its being put to such a use; yet the New-Jersey people fiercely oppose the location of the Quarantine there on the pretence that it would endanger the health of Monmouth County. Where the Quarantine is now located the danger to the people of New-Jersey is ten times greater than it could possibly be at Sandy Hook. But, in an experience of fifty years, no harm has resulted from the Quarantine at Staten Island to the people on the shore of New-Jersey close by; and, if a pestilence were to be imported into New-York, it could not fail to spread over into Jersey City, with which there is constant intercourse from this side. New-York has appointed a Committee to negotiate with New-Jersey for the privilege of using Sandy Hook for Quarantine arrangements, whereupon the Press of that State advises that no terms be made with the New-Yorkers, and that no Committee be appointed to confer with them. This is anything but neighborly; and the Legislature, having a better understanding of the matter, after first refusing to appoint a Committee of Conference, at last retracts, and New-Jersey will consent to receive a delegation appointed by the Governor of New-York. We have not the least misgivings as to the final issue of this matter. There are two reasons why New-Jersey should make a show of resistance and indignation. First, she wants to make herself felt, and her importance recognized, and then she wants to sell whatever favors she may grant, at the highest possible price. All the accommodations that may be required at Sandy Hook will be yielded, but we shall be compelled to pay roundly for them. That will be the end of the matter. The Legislature passed a resolution to adjourn on Thursday, but has prolonged its session until the 20th, on purpose to take the Quarantine business in hand, and on Tuesday they probably will decide whether or not to treat with the New-York Commission.

CRUEL AND INHUMAN NEGLECT.—Why does the Herald newspaper preserve towards the TIMES so unjust and undeserved a silence? Is it inaccessible to the sentiment of gratitude? Has it no sense of favors received? Is it utterly heartless, and lowelless, towards those who go out of their way to render it conspicuous and timely service? We devoted a large space in our columns the other day to a vindication of the Editor and Proprietor of the Herald from the "mean and malignant" attempts, made by some of his reporters and others, to rob him of the reputation which the authorship of his money articles is calculated to confer. We repelled the base aspersion that any other intellect than his own could have carried Parker Vein and Potosi stock so steadily and magnificently upward and onward,—against the most tremendous odds, until they were absolutely and beyond all hope of rivalry the most enormous and gigantic swindles in the New-York market. And not even a kick do we get for this self-denying and disinterested exercise of benevolence! Not a solitary paragraph of abuse has graced the congenial columns of the Herald from that day to this. The dead man's bones of the Old Brick Church are not more insensible to kindness, than the kindred relics of the Herald establishment.

If we were like other men we should resent such conduct as this, and very probably retaliate it. But we rise above such petty resentments. We scorn ignoble revenge. We will not turn a deaf ear, or a blind eye, to the necessities and the embarrassments even of our stony-hearted neighbor. We are determined, come what come may, in spite of obloquy or neglect, that we never, never, NEVER will desert Mr. JAMES GORDON MILLWREEK. We shall continue our attentions as leisure may give us the opportunity. Good bye—we will return presently.

TAXABLE PROPERTY OF NEW-YORK AND PHILADELPHIA.—The total taxable property of New-York for the present year, according to the Assessors, is but $527,945,718 81; which, it is admitted on all sides, is much less than the actual value of the personal and real estate of the City. The rate of taxation is $2 38 80-100 per $100. The amount of taxable property in Philadelphia, it appears, according to the report of the Finance Committee of the City Council, is but $163,869,776. This includes both personal and real estate, and the rate of taxation recommended is $2 10 on the $100; which, it will be seen, is much higher than the rate paid in New-York. So, after all the complaints of our burdensome taxes, it appears that we are not near so heavily taxed as they are in Philadelphia.

The Great Target Parade.

Something over 300 captains of target companies met last evening at Central Hall, Grand-street, to further deliberate on the proposed grand target parade on the 20th of April next. The report of the General Committee, naming the Commander-in-Chief and Generals of the two Divisions, was received and accepted. The happy men are as follows: General-in-Chief, HENRY WILSON; Major-General of First Di-

To the Afflicted.—HYATT'S LIFE BALSAM.—This potent yet purely vegetable purifier is now acknowledged the only reliable curative for all diseases flowing from great impurity of the blood.

Rheumatism in its most painful forms and of twenty-five years duration, is entirely eradicated from the system.

Scrofula and king's evil readily yield to its powerful yet mild influence, and such is its magical operation in these cases that there is seldom scarcely a scar left of the most frightful ulcers to mar the appearance of the patient.

In old sores, fever sores, mercurial diseases, it surpasses in an incredibly short period, removing every particle of impurity from the blood.

In eruptive diseases, such as erysipelas, salt rheum, pimples, blotches on the face, or the worst cases of humors of the blood, it cannot fail, if taken according to the directions.

In diseases of the liver, kidneys, spleen, debility, incipient consumption, &c., the LIFE BALSAM can be relied on as the most safe and sure remedy ever known.

The certificates put up with each bottle are not from persons 1,000 miles distant, or having no existence at all, as is the case with most of the advertised medicines, but from well-known citizens of New-York; and the cures are such as to challenge their equal in the world. The dose is from a teaspoonful to two tablespoonfuls. Special directions accompany each bottle. 75 cents per bottle—six for $4. Principal depôt, No. 246 Grand-st. Agent for Brooklyn, Mr. HAYES, No. 193 Fulton-st.; and Druggists generally.

Counterfeit Wistar's Balsam.—We would caution the purchasers of the BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY against an imitation article which has made its appearance in many places, and which might deceive the unwary by its resemblance to the genuine bottle. Of the imitation we need not speak. Unprincipled scoundrels can always be found ready to counterfeit anything by which they can put money in their pockets, and they are sure to choose the most popular and well-known article on which to practice their villainies. It is a lamentable fact that there are also dealers in medicines who are willing to lend themselves to carry out this imposition, by selling such trash as genuine, because they can buy it for less than half the cost of the genuine article. Avoid such a man as you would a dealer in counterfeit money, for he is the greater scamp of the two. They have never dared to forge the written signature of I. BUTTS, having a wholesome fear of the State Prison before their eyes. Be sure that you find on the outside wrapper the written signature of I. BUTTS, and you may rely upon its being genuine. Buy none other.
SETH W. FOWLE & CO., Boston, Proprietors.

REPUBLICATION OF
THE STANDARD BRITISH CLASSICS.
DERBY & JACKSON'S UNIFORM 12mo EDITIONS.

The Publishers, in offering the first of their projected Series of Standard Authors, whose names and fame have become as "familiar as household words" wherever the English language is spoken—cannot but feel satisfied that their enterprise will be regarded with favor by an appreciative public. It is designed to issue the series in uniform size and style, printed on fine paper with clear and open type; forming, in every particular, the MOST DESIRABLE EDITIONS of these celebrated authors—as indispensable to every well-selected library—that have yet been issued in America.

We inaugurate the series by offering first the Works of
"The Father of the English Novel."
Now ready and for sale by booksellers generally,
THE WORKS OF HENRY FIELDING,
Containing "Tom Jones," "Amelia," "Joseph Andrews," "Jonathan Wild," &c.
With a Memoir of the Author, by Roscoe.
Complete in four volumes 12mo, neat cloth, $6.
The same, in library sheep, $6.
The same, in half calf, gilt, $10.
The same, in half-calf, antique, $8.

"Of all the works of imagination to which English genius has given origin, the novels of the celebrated Henry Fielding are, perhaps, the most decidedly and exclusively her own; he was the first of the British novelists, and his power of strong and natural humor is unapproached, as yet, even by his most successful followers."—Sir Walter Scott.

"If it be granted that we are to estimate the degrees of celebrity enjoyed by men of letters, according to the influence exercised by their genius upon their own and succeeding times—the surest test, perhaps, of comparative merit—not many, we opine, will be bold enough to question the claims of one of the most profound investigators of human nature, of the most delightful yet correct interpreters of her character and language, to take precedence among the writers of English prose fiction. Should we meet with one critical execution, it might be enough to reply by inquiring, amidst what splendid galaxy of superior minds the light of Fielding's genius asserted its power, by how many wits of our luminous Augustan era he was preceded, and by how many more he was followed; a host of gigantic intellects, whose varied powers and brilliant talents still yield obeisance to his master knowledge of Nature."—Roscoe.

"Fielding was the prose Homer of human nature."—Byron.

"When we read Fielding's novels we feel like coming into the fresh air and the common ways of this bright and breathing world. We travel on the highroad of humanity, yet meet in it pleasanter companions and catch more delicious snatches of refreshment than we can hope elsewhere to enjoy."—Tuckerman.

The James-street Murder—Verdict of the Coroner's Jury.

Coroner Perry held an inquest yesterday morning at the Sixth Ward Station-House upon the body of the man James Martin, who was shot dead on Thursday night at the dance house No. 100 James-street, by Rocmus Shrix, the proprietor of the place. The testimony taken was very lengthy. The facts elicited do not vary materially from the account of the murder published in yesterday's Times. It was pretty clearly shown that Shrix acted only in self-defence, as Martin and his gang commenced and continued a most murderous and unprovoked attack upon several unoffending persons, and assailed Mr. and Mrs. Shrix most violently, because of their efforts to quell the disturbance.

The verdict rendered by the Jury was: "That deceased came to his death by injuries from a pistol shot fired by Rocmus Shrix, March 12, 1857."

Shrix stated on his examination that he was 39 years of age, was born in Bavaria, and resided at No. 100 James-street, where he keeps a dancing and porter-house. In reference to the charge against him, he said: "I shot the man in self-defence."

Shrix was held to answer in the sum of $1,500. The bail was promptly furnished by John H. Bluth, of 90 Madison-street.

His release on bail appeared to give great satisfaction to a large number of people who were present at the examination.

Martin, the deceased, was but 20 years of age. He was born in Ireland, and at one time followed the sea; but for some time past, it appears, had no regular occupation or abode. He was known as an engine-runner, and bunked in an engine house.
